

Infographic Master

Project Title	Infographic Master
Project Summary	Imagine. Design. Create. Publish. Create visual products – infographics, logos, charts, and flyers - that communicate ideas, statistics, and technical information in a format consumable by a general audience.
Country	United States

Project Description

NASA is looking for an intern who can interpret and translate written content into graphic elements, layouts and other design formats to aid in communicating important ideas and information. You should be adept at conveying technical concepts and data effectively through easy to understand charts, graphs and diagrams – making it feel digestible and interesting to consumers.

You will be supporting NASA’s Office of Chief Human Capital Officer (OCHCO), which operates within the scope of human resources and human capital initiatives. The internship will consist of a number of small special projects and work that will change throughout the year as many important initiatives come up. This is a great opportunity to understand the variety and breadth of work within human capital as it relates to an organization's culture.

Experience with Power Point, Photoshop, InDesign, Canva, Inkscape, Scribus, Illustrator is ideal but not necessary.
